

Driverless transportation: New opportunities for cities?

Together with Gate 21, we are pleased to invite you to an open masterclass on how autonomous vehicles will influence the infrastructure and planning of our cities.

New driverless technologies are entering the market, and autonomous vehicles are being put to their first test in cities around the world. But what will the city look like with full implementation of driverless cars and busses? And will it ever be a reality?

At the masterclass, we will present a brand-new future study on full implementation of autonomous cars in the Oslo region, and real-life cases will be presented from different cities in Scandinavia where autonomous shuttles are tested in real-life environments.

We have invited some of the pioneers within autonomous mobility in Scandinavia to share their experiences on how driverless shuttles can be integrated in city development. Among others, CEO Peter Sorgenfrei of Holo, one of the leading operators of autonomous vehicles in Europe, and Steen Christiansen, mayor of Albertslund, who will elaborate on the city's involvement in the LINC project.

The masterclass will take place on Friday 11 October 9:00-11:00. It is part of the C40 World Mayors Summit and Live Like Tomorrow host city festival.

Come and join an inspiring debate on what the future transport technologies will mean for a sustainable development of our cities.
